

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Meghan Allerton is a doctoral candidate in the Environmental and Life Sciences graduate program at Trent University, Peterborough, Ontario. She contributed to Seeding Global Collaboration (2016) and has published in the Journal of Macrodynamical Analysis. She holds an M.Env.Sc. and an Honours B.Sc. from the University of Toronto. She can be reached at meghanallerton@trentu.ca.

Bruce Anderson's research and writing has been concerned with legal decision-making, economic theory, and contemporary sculpture. His work draws on the writings of Philip McShane and Bernard Lonergan. It includes 'Discovery' in Legal Decision Making and Beyond Establishment Economics (with P. McShane). He is Professor of Law at Saint Mary's University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada and can be reached at bruce.anderson@smu.ca.

John Benton (M.A. B.Ed. B.A.) is an active scholar and educator. He has published academic articles and books in the philosophy of language, method, and co-authored a book on economics. Benton engages in international outreach to graduate university students. He can be reached at bentonfutures@outlook.com.

Patrick Brown is an independent scholar in Honolulu, Hawaii. Before moving to Hawaii, he taught in the philosophy department and the school of law at Seattle University. Brown received his Ph.D. in philosophy from Boston College. He has published articles in Theological Studies, the Journal of Catholic Social Thought, Method: Journal of Lonergan Studies, the Seattle University Law Review, Divyadaan, the Journal of Macrodynamical Analysis, and other publications. He can still be reached at atbrownp@seattleu.edu.

Ivo Coelho, SDB earned a PhD in philosophy at the Gregorian University, Rome, for his work on "The Development of the Notion of the Universal Viewpoint in Bernard Lonergan: From Insight to Method in Theology" (1994). Among his publications are Hermeneutics and Method: The 'Universal Viewpoint' in Bernard Lonergan (2001), Brahman and Person: Essays by Richard De Smet (2010) (ed.), Violence and its Victims: A Challenge to Philosophizing in the Indian Context (Association of Christian Philosophers India vol. 11, 2010) (ed.), Understanding Śāṅkara:

Essays by Richard De Smet (2013) (ed.), and Keeping the Faith: Festschrift for Joaquim D'Souza, SDB (2016) (ed.). He can be reached at ivo.coelho@gmail.com.

Stephen J. Costello holds a BA, MA, and PhD in philosophy. He has addressed two parliaments—Stormont on human rights and the European Parliament in Brussels on mental health. He has twenty-five years' experience giving seminars and talks and is the founder-director of the Viktor Frankl Institute of Ireland, the author of eleven books, and works as a corporate consultant and practicing analyst. He can be reached at drstephenjcostello@gmail.com.

James Duffy received his Ph.D. from Fordham University. Currently he teaches English as a second language at the ITESM in Mexico and is coordinating a series of ongoing dialectic exercises. He wrote “Fratelli Tutti and Colorful Fruit to Be Borne,” (Divyadaan 32/2-3 [2021]), edited “Religious Faith Seeding the Positive Anthropocene Age” (Divyadaan 30/1 [2019]), and co-edited (with Patrick Brown) Seeding Global Collaboration. He can be reached at humanistasmorelia@gmail.com.

Francisco Vicente Galán Vélez is a full-time professor in the philosophy department at the Universidad Iberoamericana in Mexico City. He oversaw the translation of Insight: Estudio sobre la comprensión humana, trad. Francisco Quijano (Salamanca: Universidad Iberoamericana-Sígueme, 1999), and he is a cofounder of Loneragan en Latinoamérica. He can be reached at francisco.galan@ibero.mx.

Michael George teaches Religion and Culture, and Ethics at St. Thomas University in Fredericton, New Brunswick. He is interested in helping to promote the project of integrative bioethics, which he considers to be a possible prototype of collaborative and in-depth interdisciplinary work. As the project is centered in Zagreb, he spends some time in Croatia and South-eastern Europe. He enjoys time with his children and grandchildren and can be reached at mgeorge@stu.ca.

Alexandra Gillis is a teacher and educational researcher living in the city of Vancouver, on the territorial lands of the Musqueam, Squamish and Tsleil-Waututh peoples, amidst mountains and ocean of Canada's west coast. She has published Thinking Woman (2006) and is co-author, with John Benton and Philip McShane, of Introducing Critical Thinking (2005).

She currently works for the Ministry of Education and can be reached at atsandy.gillis@telus.net.

Daniel A. Helminiak is Emeritus Professor of Psychology, University of West Georgia. He holds PhDs in theology and psychology and has published in these fields and their applications to spirituality and sexuality. Among his books are The Human Core of Spirituality, Religion and the Human Sciences, Spirituality for our Global Community, the international bestseller What the Bible Really Says about Homosexuality and, most recently, Brain, Consciousness, and God: A Lonerganian Integration. He can be reached at dhelmini@westga.edu.

Robert Henman lectured in philosophy, ethics, Child Studies, and Peace Studies at Mount St. Vincent University, Halifax, Canada for 35 years. He is the author of The Child as Quest, Global Collaboration: Neuroscience as Paradigmatic, and Reorienting Education and the Social Sciences: Transitioning Towards the Positive Anthropocene. He can be reached at robert.henman@msvu.ca.

Pierrot Lambert is the author of Bernard Lonergan: Introduction à sa vie et à son œuvre (Montréal: Guérin, 2008), co-author (with Charlotte Tansey and Cathleen Going) of Caring about Meaning: Patterns in the Life of Bernard, and co-author (with Philip McShane) of Bernard Lonergan: His Life and Leading Ideas. He translated Lonergan's Insight into French (1996) and is the webmaster of the French Lonergan website <http://français.lonergan.org>.

Brendan Lovett SSC is an Irish-born member of the missionary Society of St. Columban which was founded in 1918. He has been working in the Republic of the Philippines since 1967, excepting periods spent receiving his Dr. theol. in Münster (1972–75) followed by a four-year teaching assignment in Sydney (1976–1979) and, much later, a one-year invitation to the National Seminary in Yangon, Myanmar (2004–2005). He can be reached at brlovett66@hotmail.com.

Daniel Mayer, leadership educator and researcher into the epistemology of biology, has long reflected on the nature of organization, both of organisms and of organizations. This is the topic of his recently completed PhD dissertation Distinguishing Distinctions: The Nature of Living Being. He has read several papers at the Annual Fallon Memorial Lonergan

Symposium, the Annual International Gathering in Biosemiotics and regularly participates in the Leadership for Change conferences at the University of San Diego. He can be reached at danielcmayer@gmail.com.

Sean McNelis is a housing researcher at the Centre for Urban Transitions, Swinburne University of Technology. He has over 40 years' experience in housing management, research, policy and advocacy. He writes on functional collaboration and Lonergan's economics as they relate to housing research. He can be reached at smcnelis@swin.edu, and his personal website is <http://artfulhousing.com.au>.

Kenneth R. Melchin is Emeritus Professor in the Faculty of Theology and Director of the Lonergan Centre at Saint Paul University, Ottawa. He has authored numerous publications including Spiritualizing Politics without Politicizing Religion (with James Price), Transforming Conflict through Insight (with Cheryl Picard), and Living with Other People.

Cecilia Moloney is a professor of electrical and computer engineering with Memorial University of Newfoundland in St. John's, Canada. She can be reached at cmoloney@mun.ca

Paul O'Hara has a Ph.D. in mathematics from UCLA and has widely published in theoretical physics especially in the areas related to general relativity and quantum mechanics. Currently, he is a professor of scientific methodology at the Instituto Universitario Sophia (Italy). He can be reached at paul.ohara@sophiauniversity.org.

Cyril Orji is professor of theology and Core Integrated Study. He is the author of numerous books, including Unmasking the African Ghost (2022), A Semiotic Christology (2021), and A Science–Theology Rapprochement (2018). His research applies the thought of Bernard Lonergan, C. S. Peirce, and Wolfhart Pannenberg to questions of enculturation, systematic theology, natural science, and World Christianity. He can be reached at xstiam@yahoo.com.

Brendan Purcell embarked on what became a 10-year haul on a PhD in psychology via Leuven and UCD (1980) after completing his BA studies in philosophy at UCD (1963) and an STL in theology at the Lateran University in Rome (1967). His publications include From Big Bang to Big Mystery (2011) and Where Is God in Suffering? (2016). He is now at St. Mary's Cathedral, Sydney, and is adjunct professor at the University of Notre Dame (Australia). He can be reached at brendanpur@gmail.com.

Terrance Quinn obtained his BSc in 1987, his MSc in 1988 and his PhD in 1992 (all in mathematics). During his early career, he published in pure and applied mathematics, as well as in mathematics pedagogy. He gradually broadened his focus, with the works of Bernard Lonergan and Philip McShane becoming significant influences. Quinn has publications in foundations of science and has been making inroads in economics. He can be reached at terrance.quinn@mtsu.edu.

Michael Vertin is Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, Study of Religion, and Theology at St. Michael's College in the University of Toronto. He is a longtime student of Lonergan's work and has edited four volumes of studies by Frederick Crowe, Lonergan's well-known intellectual biographer.

William J. Zanardi is Professor Emeritus at St. Edward's University in Austin, Texas. Over the last thirty plus years, the works of Bernard Lonergan and Philip McShane have greatly influenced his teaching and writing. As one of the authors in a series of eight books on the fourth functional specialty, he has been slowly educating himself on how to do dialectic and sharing the results with others. He can be reached at williamz@stedwards.edu.